Over the decades, Texas Children’s has changed countless young lives. We’ve been instrumental in developing groundbreaking treatments and technologies that give hope to children around the world. We’ve grown from three stories and 106 beds to become one of the largest pediatric hospitals in the nation, winning numerous accolades along the way. Our supporters, physicians and staff have made Texas Children’s what it is today. Although they come from all walks of life and every corner of the globe, each one of them is moving toward the future of children’s health care. Today, Texas Children’s stands at the forefront of an exciting new world in pediatric health care. Together, we will continue to grow, saving more lives and creating better futures for children everywhere.
